In all demonstrated cases an intensive treatment is begun immediately and the case kept under observation as long as possible. No patient is released, of course, while any luetic lesion remains. When any patient so treated is released he is directed to place himself under competent medical supervision, and to secure a Wassermann reaction every six months for at least two years; moreover, every such patient is supplied with appropriate literature. As no case of lues has been encountered here in the third stage, this procedure would seem to be adequate. During the year the prevalence of lues has been 13 per cent. of the inmate population. Six hundred and eleven biological specimens from 569 cases have been reported upon by the laboratory. Of these, 82 were positive, 490 were negative (including unsatisfactory specimens, broken containers, etc. ), 34 doubtful and 5 unsatisfactory. Two hundred and forty-six doses of diarsenol, an equivalent of salvarsan, have been given intravenously to 82 patients. Ten cases gave negative reactions six months or a year or more after the last treatment, indicating a cure so far as it is possible to know after that interval of observation. Number of luetic cases under treatment Oct. 1, 1916, 36 Number of luetic cases added during the year, 56 Total number of such cases under treatment, 92 Gonorrhea, a more prevalent venereal disease, now more difficult to cure than syphilis, and more deceiving to victims on the question of cure, may...
